

Bullhorn built for your business | Bullhorn implementation with Bennett & Game Recruitment

Complex data migration

Tailored configuration

In-depth user training

After more than a decade on the same legacy system, Bennett & Game knew they needed something more flexible that could integrate with other tools and scale with their business. Bullhorn offered that flexibility, especially with its partner ecosystem, and Kyløe were brought in to help make the move a success.

"Kyløe were focussed on what we were trying to achieve. Their Bullhorn expertise is unparalleled, and they knew precisely how to tailor it to suit our setup."

The solution

Kyløe delivered a full Bullhorn implementation with Automation and Analytics, ensuring everything reflected the business's existing processes.

"We went from coded lists, to a custom field, back to skills and categories - and our dedicated (and patient) implementation consultant helped us work through it. Considering how many moving parts there were, it went very well. Every milestone of our 6 month project was delivered on schedule, and we went live as planned, in the strongest possible position."

The experience

Training became one of the standout parts of project with the sessions feeling relevant and specific to their business. Alongside the remote sessions delivered, Kyløe also provided onsite training, giving the team dedicated support directly within their own environment.

"We had really good feedback about the end-user training. Usually you get trainers who say 'good question, we'll circle back' and they never do - but this was different. It didn't feel scripted; it was focused on our workflow and how we actually work."

"If there's something we want Bullhorn to do and it can't, we know we can run it past Kyløe - it's either, 'No, we haven't done that before but we think we can,' or, 'Yes, we know exactly what you're trying to do.'"

The impact

Just a week after go-live, the team were already working confidently in the new system.

"There was obviously some trepidation about the length of time it could take to adjust to the system, but within a week, our team found their rhythm and were confidently navigating. Productivity didn't suffer as much as we feared, and while we may miss parts of the old system, it's already clear to see the value Bullhorn is bringing."

"This wasn't just a system change; it's Bennett & Game 2.0. We now have the platform, tools and infrastructure to work smarter, faster, and more collaboratively than ever before which will naturally strengthen our relationships with our clients and candidates."
